

The FCC should not have to make a ruling on something that is paid for by the consumer. Satellite radio is really great because a person can set thier radio to one station and listen to that station 24/7 if they want, have driven from one large metro area to another, hear the traffic and weather way before they get into the area and get caught up in a accident traffic jam with no way out. Satellite radio is the way to go if you are on the road all the time like I am. I drive a semi and I bought my system before it took off and wouldn't have it any other way now. I put it in my semi, my pickup, my home, and yes when I take a vacation in the wife's minivan it goes in there too.
